POSSIBLE PARTNERSHIPS

- The Knowledge Centre has become one of the leading institutes for social innovation in Hungary, in cooperation with European organisations, research networks and civil society representatives engaged in social innovation.

- They would collaborate with stakeholders interested in applying the results of social innovation research in practice, as well as with organisations and regions acting as 'living laboratories'.

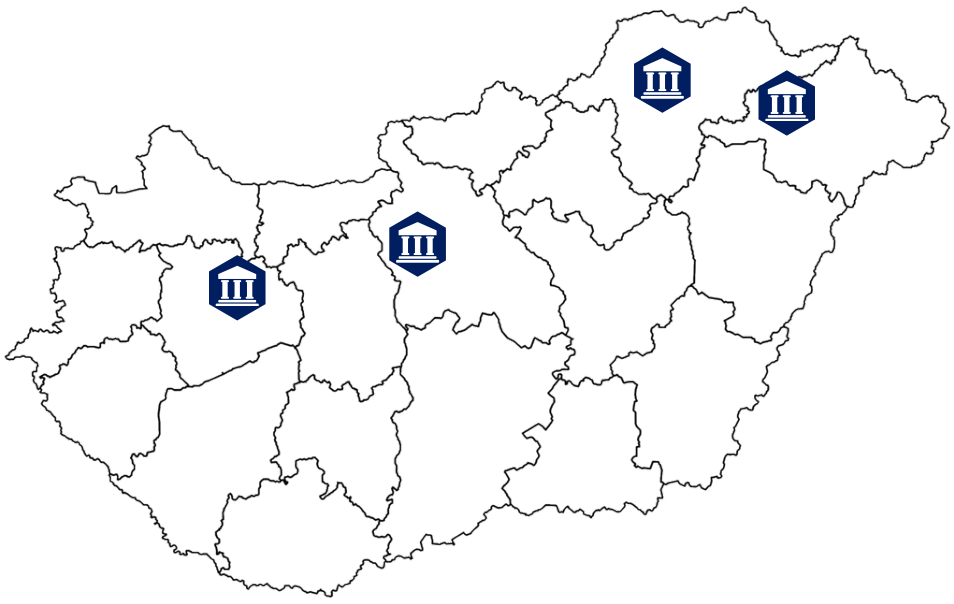

- In order to ensure the cohesion of the social innovation ecosystem, they would cooperate with other committed implementers of social innovation participating in national and international programmes (European Social Fund, Creative Europe, Horizon2020, Interreg, EaSI, etc.).

TARGET GROUP

Alongside the founding institutions - ELTE, University of Miskolc, University of Pannonia, HÁRFA Foundation - the consortium involves currently approximately 200 collaborating partners. TINLAB's target group is composed mainly of the 'quadruple helix' players (academia, government, business and civil society) and those involved in socio-economic utilisation. Thematic forums and dissemination activities play a key role in addressing the diverse target groups, while external actors are also actively involved within the research activities.
